The founder, Robert Raikes, began carving wooden dolls in the mid-1970s and developed a series of carved bears in the early 1980s. The company has been family-owned since its return from licensing through Applause (1985-1990). Limited edition items include the Star bear, which stands at 30 inches tall, and the fanciful 14-Karat bear adorned with beaded carrots. Other notable series include Bedazzled Birthstone bears, Itty Bitty Bugs, Home-Sweet-Home, and Occupational. Raikes teddy bears have gained popularity online, with multiple platforms offering valuation estimates and seller-listed prices. By comparing listings across sites like Bears-Dolls.com, Lunch Time Shopper, WorthPoint, and eBay, one can get a clear estimate of their worth. These rare collectibles were handcrafted with mohair and wooden faces by Robert Raikes, sold through Applause from 1985 to 2010. Since the company no longer produces them, the market relies on secondary sales. Many online platforms feature listings for Raikes Bears, including WorthPoint, which provides pricing information for a fee. eBay listings for these teddy bears vary greatly in price, ranging from $1 to several thousand dollars as of 2015.
